NEWS AND GOSSIP FROM WASHINGTON

A Congressional Claim and the Tragio Story in It—A Tribute to Modest Dick Grubb, of Georgia.

Washington, January 2.—(Special.)— Washington has never known such a quiet New Year's Day as this. There were none of the usual official receptions. The white house was closed-quarantined. The cabinet officers' houses were also closed, out of consideration for the president's grief. The senators and representatives' houses were also closed. As a consequence, the diplomatic corps and the army and navy officers have been unable to exhibit themselves in their gay uni-forms to the admiring eyes of their sex.

This is only the third time since the war that the white house has been closed to the public on this usually festive occasion. During President Grant's administration, Mrs. Belknap, wife of the secretary of war, died just after Christmas, and the New Year reception was omitted out of respect to her memory. The second time was just twelve years ago, during the administration of President Arthur. The reception had just begun, and the members of the diplomatic corps, which takes precedence on such occasion, were awaiting the president's pleasure to receive them, when Mr. Allen, the Hawalan minister, the dean of the corps, was taken suddenly ill and died in a few minutes. This melancholic event naturally cast a gloom over the affair, and the reception was at once brought to an end. The news spread rapidly throughout the city, and all other official receptions were at

Today, however, will ever be memorable in the history of the white house as the first and only time the chief magistrate of the nation could not open it to his friends, even if he so desired, because it would have been dangerous to do so. With all the departments and places of siness closed, there was scarcely anything except open barrooms and restaurants and closed churches to distinguish the day from one of the dullest of Wash-

There were a number of callers at the Metropolitan hotel upon Speaker and Mrs. Crisp, but the speaker is yet confined to his room, and has seen no one since his return from New York.

"His senatorial whiskers," otherwise Senator William Alfred Peffer; of Kansas, is on velvet, so to speak. Right now he is the belle of the ball. Presents and compliments are being lavished upon him and in turn he is coquetting with the leaders of both parties.

The government owns a large building across the way from the senate end of the capitol. In it all senators, who are not chairmen of committees having rooms in the capitol building, have rooms assignd to the capitol building, have rooms assigned to them. They are delightful rooms and many of them are handsomely furnished at the nator Peffer had one of these rooms as signed to him last year, but then the sense tor was not a belle, and he couldn't get sergeant at arms of the te to provide him with any iture. But now his vote may be needed by either party to organize the senate and matters are very different. He didn't even have to ask to have that room furnished this year. There's nothing too good for the whiskered Kansan now. The room is furnished in grand and magnifi-cent style—heavy rugs, beautiful curtains, ved furniture, elegant lounges, a gilt-ed heater and, indeed, everything elegant

Not only that, but the present organize tion of the senate thought he might desire a little patronage and generously presented his son with a $1,200 position on the sen-ate pay rolls, and his nephew with a $900 one. And yet it has been denied that "a n gold was discovered in California," said he, "the pioneers were greatly harassed by the Indians, and the government sent out a commission to treat with the latter in order to secure peace and also ac quire mineral lands. The commissioners had $30,000 appropriated for their expenses, but after they had finished their work they found that they had to do something to keep the Indians from starving and they pur-chased 1,000 head of cattle, at $80 a head, chased 1,000 head of cattle, at soon from McDougall. When they returned home the treaty was not ratified, and when McDougall his money the supreme Dougall came to seek his money the supreme court decided that the commissioners had exceeded their powers in involving the government for any sum above the $30,000, which had been appropriated. Then Mc-Dougall appealed to congress for his money, especially as the government kept the min-eral lands and enjoyed the benefits thus aired. He never received a cent, and to-his heirs are still prosecuting the paper in America. That is because The Post is seen and read everywhere. In Georgia there is a modest little weekly with probably not more than a thousand readers that, in each issue, contains a column of paragraphs which would make any large daily famous. It is Dick Grubb's work in The Darien Timber Gazette. If Grubb would crawl out of his hole down there and attach himself to a big daily somewhere he would make himself and the paper a reputation that his friends and descendants would be proud of.

EXTRA SESSION GOSSIP. One May Ba Called but Probably Not Until Next Fail.

Washington, January 2.—The recent conference between the president-elect and Speaker Crisp, was expected to result in some authorized announcement on the subject of an extra session. While these anticipations have not been realized, as Speaker Crisp has studiously refrained from giving out any statement as to what passed between Mr. Cleveland and himself, something in the nature of a statement on "good authority" is being passed around among democratic leaders.

Aste an Extra Session.

As to an Extra Session.

This runs to the effect that while no final decision will be made on the question of an extra session of congress until February, by which time the cabinet of President-elect Cleveland will probably have been selected, the probabilities are decidedly against an extra session before next autumn. Mr. Cleveland, it is stated, has said to the democratic leaders in congress that he will call congress together in special session. He also told them, it is reported, that it would not be convoked before autumn unless the financial situation and the condition of the treasury made it absolutely imperative that congress should meet in the spring to provide the government with the necessary amount of revenue to met its expenses. He wishes to avoid the necessity of an early extraordinary session. As to an Extra Session extraordinary session.

will begin its work on the result of its investigation.

The conclusion on the part of the majority of the subcommittee that there will be an actual deficit in the treasury unless additional revenue is raised might induce Mr. Cleveland, it is thought, to alter his views with reference to an extra session in the spring, but no other consideration of it will bring about such a result is now foreseen. It is the opinion of some of the leading democrats in the house that an investigation will show that the treasury receipts and expenditures are very nearly equal at present and that there is grave reason to fear an excess of the latter in the coming fiscal year.

By the end of the month the subcommittee's work of investigation will either be concluded or far enough in progress to permit the democratic members to acquaint Mr. Cleveland with the situation and their conclusions. quaint Mr. Cleveland with the situation and their conclusions as to the future, so that his final decision with reference to an extra session may be based on a full information as to the treasury conditions which will confront his administration the first year or year and a half of its existence. It is because of the possibility of the close approximation between the revenues and expenditures that some serious attention is being paid by this democratic members to the proposition to increase the whisky tax. This would be an easy method of raising additional money and Mr. Springer and his associates will take it under advisement if the result of their investigation discloses a call for more revenue.

MR. CLEVELAND'S NEW YEARS.

He Stayed at Home Trying to Catch Up with His Correspondence.

New York, January 2.—President-elect
Cleveland passed New Years day very quietly in his home.

"I am resting, and trying to do some work," said he to a reporter. During my recent absence my work assumu-lated and I am now trying to reduce my correspondence and get things to right. I am not receiving, in the usual sense of the word, although if any of my friends drop in upon me, I shall, of course, be glad to

The dispatch from St. Louis stating that Mr. Cleveland was a member of the syndicate that was trying to buy up all the sur-dicate that was trying to buy up all the surface railroads in the city on speculation, was shown to him. He denied its truth, as far as it referred to himself, most emphatically. He added:

"It is a lie made out of the whole cloth. I have not invested any money in the manner stated, and I do not intend to go into railway speculation. My time will be too much occupied in the near future to allow me to enter into speculation, even if I desired to, which I do not."

Mr. Cleveland dined quietly at his home in the evening and afterward received a few informal calls from friends.

NOT SERIOUSLY ILL.

Speaker Crisp Only Suffering from an Attack of Indigestion.

Washington, January 2.—The special last night sent out the Speaker Crisp is a very sick man. Dr. Sowers, the attending physician, was to see him twice Saturday. Members of the family were greatly alarmed, but last night Judge Crisp was much improved, and the worst appears to be over. While in New York Speaker Crisp caught a severe cold, which settled in his stomach. Dr. Sowers said this morning that he was attending Speaker Crisp for an attack of indigestion; that the speaker was not seriously ill, and that he has not been well since his return from New York Saturday morning. Washington, January 2.—Senator Kenna, of West Virginia, who has been seriously Ill for several weeks from a complication of diseases, but who has recently been considered out of danger, had a relapse yesterday and his family believed that he would not survive the night. This morning he was slightly better, but not sufficiently to allay fear and the gravest apprehensions.

Mr Blaine's Condition. "Mr. Blaine is not as well as he was yesterday," safd Dr. Johnston about 8:30 o'clock this evening. "Mr. Blaine is about the same." This was what an attendant at Mr. Blaine's residence said. The hour was 9 o'clock p. m.

London, January 2.—Baroness de Rouques denies the truth of the report that Mrs.

The Exchange Telegraph Company, however, re-affirms the truth of its first report that the wounds from which the effusion of blood came was inflicted upon Mrs. Maybrick by herself with a knife obtained from a prison attendant.

Banqueted the Priests.

Limerick, January 2.—The mayor of the city gave a banquet this evening to ten Parnellite priests. The principal toast of the evening was "Ireland—a Nation." All the customary toasts to the queen, etc., were omitted.

Madrid, January 2.—Fifteen hundred anarchists held a runion yesterday even-ing in Barcelona, to celebrate the New Year. There was much incendiary talk, and several of the speakers predicted a reign of bloodshed and terror in Spain during the year just opened. The leading anarchist, one Volas, declared that he meant to inaugurate 1893 with a baptism of blood. Great shouts of approval and torrents of denunciation of the grandees and middle classes followed this declaration.

"Give No Quarter."

"Give them no quarter," she cried, "no quarter I will lead to the points of the bayonets." The whole audience seemed frenzied by the woman's wild utterances and there might have been a dangerous demonstration but for the interference of some of the cooler heads who succeeded in calming the excited gathering.

The authorities have not attempted to interfere with the movement, which they believe to be formented by the French, combined with Spanish anarchist. The authorities have made extraordinary preparations, however, for the possibility of an uprising and the garrison of Barcelona has been considerably strengthened and the number of sentinels in public buildings increased. The minister of the interior has received information that several hundred pounds of dynamice have disappeared from the depot in the mines of Linares in the south of Spain. The local police have not yet discovered the thickves or direction they took with the explosives.

WHAT LOUBET SAYS.

The Attitude of the Chamber Toward the Panama Canal Scandal.

Marwilles, January 2.—The Petit Marseillaise publishes an interview with Loubet as to the attitude of the chamber toward the Panama canal scandal. Loubet says that the chamber rushed headlong without consideration or preparation into the Panama inquiry. The deputies seemed suddenly to have lost their senses, and they outbid each other in overzealousness and reckless accusations. Doubtless it was bad enough, but had the judgment of the chamber fostered erroneous conceptions among the people of its magnitude such an excessive outburst of prudery must have its reaction and burst of prudery must have its reaction and thus defeat many of its own ends. The most extravagant hopes had been raised among disloyal parties by the recklessness shown in the chamber and the whole fabric of republican institutions in France had been endangered unless great care and tact were exercised constantly in the next few weeks. The men who had behaved so fanatically might have startling proofs of the errors into which they had fallen and caused others to fall. Every effort must be made to wind up the whole Panama affair beforenext March, in order that engagements in connection with the state debt might be strictly fulfilled. purst of prudery must have its reaction and

The Democrats Withdraw and Set Up Shop by Themselves.

MRS LEASE BOUGHT WITH AN OFFICE But Still Has an Of Bye on the Senato ship—A Midnight Caucus in Minne-sots—Democrats Firm in Colorado.

Topeka, Kan., January 2.—The intens interest in the fight for senator in Kansa has practically overshadowed question of legislation. All that has been said and written about the coming session since the election has had reference to the selection of Perkins's successor rather than to the passage of amendments or repeal of laws. The legislature does not open till a week hence, and all matters regarding it as to organization and probable action are in a chaotic state. Both senatorial and legislative questions hinge upon the organization of the house. The republicans have a bare majority in one of the houses. If they can compel the at-tendance of every republican member and keep in line, there seems to be every reason to believe that they will succeed in organizing the house. That done, they will have the power, if they desire to use it, to unseat enough populists to secure a majority on joint ballot and to elect a republican successor to Senator Perkins, to fill out the unexpired term of the late Senator Plumb, Perkins having been appointed to serve only until the present ssion of the legislature. On the other hand, the populists have a majority in the senate of three, and they will be able to unseat the entire minority of eleven members if necessary to overcome the joint ballot majority, which the republicans might secure by the unseating process in the house. The fight then could degenerate into a question of which party could unseat the most members. Both parties disclaim any intention of unscating any body. In that event, the republicans will be able to organize the house, and the populists will have a majority of three in the senate, four straight-out democrats in the house, and the senate will hold the balance of power on foint ballot. The parties in joint ses sion will be divided as follows: Republicate, 73; populists 73; democrats 4. Up to the time the populist leaders at their Indianapolis meeting issued a manifesto urging all populist legislators to support only a straight-out populist candidate for the senate, the chances seemed good for a fusion of populists and democrats upon a senatorial candidate where some liberal democrat, who accepted the basis of populist principles, like Judge John Martin, or some populist who had democratic tendencies like Congressman-elect Harris. The populist manifesto, however, seems now to have precluded such a possibility. The populists are inclined to obey their leaders' orders, and the democrats are perfectly willing to let them attempt to elect with a minority, while they (the democrats) hold the balance of power. Senator Perkins is a candidate for re-election by the republicans. Mrs. Lease is not seriously a candidate. She has signified her acceptance of place on the state board of charities, and that is regarded as disposing of her senatorial ambition. She naively announces however, that she will resign from the board of charities if she is elected to represent her state in the senate.

THE STRUGGLE IN NEBRASKA.

Three-Cornered Fight Interests the Pol iticians. Omaha, Neb., January 2.—On Tuesday at Lincoln, will open one of the prettiest three-cornered fights ever witnessed. In the legislative session neither of the three parites has sufficient strength to organize palites has sufficient strength to organize either house of the third Nebraska generil assembly without the assistance of the other two, and thus far no plan or fusion or combination has been presented that meets the approval of the parties interested. It seems probable that the democrats and independents may get together before tomorrow night. In addition to the election of a United States senator to succeed Mr. Paddock, the legislature will be called upon to deal with important railrand legislation and other matters of vital interest to the state. From these reasons cames the importance of controlling the organization of the house, as the party helding the organization of that body can centrol the legislature.

It was suggested last night that the antimpopoly members of the legislature, irrespective of party, organize the body and let the senatorial fight take care of itself.

A Hard Writ to Serve.

A Hard Writ to Serve.

One of the peculiar features is the situation in Knox county. By a decision of the supreme court rendered Saturday, a republican will be sent to the house from that county instead of an independent. To accomplish this it is necessary to serve the court's writ on the county clerk of Knox county. When the buildiff reached the county seat Saturday evening he found that the county clerk, an independent, had been wirned of his coming and had decamped. The bailliff is now chasing the clerk from place to place to obtain service on him. But it is too late to comply with the court's onler and have the republican member present at the opening of the session.

Unless the combination last mentioned is made effectual, the house and senate will probably spend the week getting organized. A Hard Writ to Serve.

DEMOCRATS WALKED OUT

Helena, Mont, January 2.—The legislature met today. The senate organized without difficulty. In the house Davidson, democrat, was absent; sick. The state auditor was in charge. On roll call, both contestants from Choteau county were omitted, the democrats objecting without success. All the other members were sworn in. A motion was carried by the republicans, including two populists, to proceed to the election of a temporary chairman, the democrats again objecting, leaving their seats. The remaining twenty-five republicans and the two populsts proceeded to ballot,

IT'S CLOSE IN COLORADO. But the Democrats Seem to Hold the Bala

Denyer, Col., January 2.—Indications are that the Colorado legislature will not organize without the usual row. The republicans have a small majority in the house, but the populists and democrats have been rustling and claim tonight that they will organize the body when it is called to order Wednesday noon. They claim to have secured the pledges of two republicans to aid them. Great interest, however, will center in the organization of the senate. Of thirty-five members, fifteen are republicans, fifteen are populists and eight democrats, the latter holding the balance of power. The probability is that there will be three separate caucuses tomorrow afternoon and evening, and hot times in the dignified body from the moment it meets Wednesday at noon.

MR- WILLINGHAM'S ARREST

Chicago, January 2.—(Special.)—Mr. W. J. Willingham, the Atlanta business man who was arrested last night at the Palmer house and incarcerated on the charge of disorderly conduct, was released this morn-

Telegrams were received during the day from well-known Atlantians who knew Mr. Willingham and who offered to give bond for any amount in his behalf, whatever might be the cherges made against him. Among those who interested themselves in the matter was Colonel W. J. Mr. Scott made a prompt investigation, and in a few minutes Mr. Willingham was released.

White Caps After the Negroes in West Liberty, Ohio.

Springfield, Q., January 2.—There is great excitement at West Liberty today over the discovery that white cap notices, over the discovery that white cap notices, ordering all negroes to leave town, had been posted in prominent places during the night A mob attempted to lynch Grant Jackson, a mulatto, who eloped with Bessie Hinkle, a pretty white waitress at the Grand Union hotel here, but he escaped to the woods. A terrible outbreak is feared. Jackson was tarred and feathered last week by the citizens of Wess Liberty, but he returned in spite of warnings with the above result.

The third party has seemingly rejuvinated in Wilkes county and has been working steadily, since the last election in November. Some intertain fears of a possible election of at least two third party candidates, but the more conservative are confident of a complete victory. We hope this will be the last of third partyism in Wilkes county.

A FUNERAL IN WASHINGTON. The Exercises Over the Body of the Late Frank benwarz.

Washington, January. 2—(Special.)— Frank Schwarz, a well-known Wasning-tonian, committed suicide Friday.

Saturday night at 12 o'clock ceremonies were held over the body at the Cathedral of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite.

The ceremonies were in the hands of the Albert Pike consistory, of which order he was a member.

To the noise of the tinhorn, the cannon, cracker and the steam whistles on the outside, welcoming the new year, the ceremonies were held.

Around the coffin were ferns and flowers with gas jets among them. At the head of the coffin perched a white dove with outstretched wings, and to the left on a small table surrounded by tapers, grinned a human shall man skull.

The cathedral was filled with people, the majority attracted by curiosity.

The ceremonies lasted an hour, beginning at midnight. The Scottish Rite burial service is pretty and dramatic in the extreme.

The worshipful master stood at the head of the bier and began the services with the strong introductory His questions were answered alternately by the assistants, who stood at the foot At the challenge calling upon any one who could say aught against the dead man, one of them stepped forward, laid his hand upon the lid and said impressively, "God is his judge." The reply was repeated by all, and a prayer was said on bended knee.

The cofin lid was then removed and the corpse exposed to view. Around the brows was a chaplet of laurel. On the breast was a gittering cross. The hands and feet were bound with cords. The chaplet was removed in token that he who had passed from them was done with fame; the cross was removed him; the cords were removed in token that the soul is unbound and what is left is merely a useless tenement of clay. Each of the brethren in turn marched around the body, dipped a hand in water, sprinkled the cold form and repeated with slight variations, "Our brother now is dead to this world, but lives in the world everlasting."

While the ceremonial was in progress the quartet rendered a hymn, accompanied by the organ. After a final prayer and commendation of the departed to the mercy of Almighty God, the knights marched out in single file.

Then followed a most affecting scene.

Amighty food, the knights marched out in single file.

Then followed a most affecting scene. The wife of the man who had been hurled to the grave by his own hand was led to the coffin and threw herself upon the corpse. Her sobs were convulsive. She clung to the cold form and pressed her lips to his forehead, refusing for some time to be led away. "Oh, Frank, Frank!" she moaned, and the moan was echoed by the sister, who sat a little to the rear, where the shadow was thickest, and who in turn clung to the corpse. After the body was viewed by those who thronged the room, it was left alone with its guards. The burial was on Sunday afternoon.

New York, January 2.—The dynamite cruiser Vesuvius, Lieutenant Schroeder, left the Brooklyn navy yard today for Port Royal. She passed out of Sandy Hook at 8:39 o'clock. The vessel will go direct to Port Royal sound, where final test of her great dynamite guns will be made early next week.

A HORSE IS MISSING FROM TOWN

And It Is Charged Up as the Work of Judge Gentry-The Jailers Were Discharged Yesterday.

The six prisoners that escaped from the Fulton county jail Sunday night are still at liberty. Nothing has been seen of them. They disappeared as completely as if the earth had swallowed them up. They exercised as much shrewdness in getting safely away after getting on the outside of the jail as they did coolness in grabbling the jailers and taking the keys of the jailers, who were armed. Gentry was probably heard from yesterday morning when Mr. R. C. Harper, the livery stable man reported at police head-quarters the loss of a fine horse, which was stolen from his stable at West End

Sunday night.

When Mr. Harper went out to his stables yesterday morning he found the stable empty, in which a splendid horse had been kept during the night. He had just read in the morning paper of the jail escape, and he at once thought of Asbury Gentry as the thief of his horse. He reported the matter at police headquarters. ported the matter at police headquarters, and Chief Connolly had sent out 200 cir-clars by noon describing the stolen horse, and stating that Gentry was supposed to be the thief.

The jail escape was the talk of the town yesterday, and the comment generally was not very favorable to the jilers, who had let six desperate prisoners get away by a piece of carelessness which they confessed. Sheriff Morrow viewed their action in anything but a favorable light tion in anything but a favorable light, and yesterday morning he notified Jailers Mattox and White that their services were no longer needed. They were to have gone out next week when Sheriff Barnes took charge, an Captain Morrow decided that it would be best to get rid of the two jailers as soon as possible. He aske Captain Barnes to supply their places with the gentlemen he had selected as his jailers, and last night Mr. John Corrigan, the well-known ex-groceryman and Mr. Will Gilleland, who was discharged from the place a few weeks ago, were in charge. Mattox, one of the discharged jailers, has been acting as Jailer Miller's first as sistant for more than a year. He was a member of the police force eight years, and was discharged for cowardice. He failed to come to time in helping to make an arrest. Alec Goodson made the arrest. and a case was made against Mattox, and he was dropped.

White, the other jailer, has not been at the jail long. He succeed Deputy Will Gilleland about four weeks ago. Their successars will hold over during Captain Barnes's administration.

No attempt was made yesterday to follow the fugitives. No dogs could be secured Sunday night, and, adn, if they had, the chances of trailing them successfully woul have been small, as the men had got a good start, and were several miles away.

The officers think there will be little trouble in catching one or two of the negroes who escaped. Guy Body and John Whitfield, two of the escapes, have homes here, and are well known to the police. The police think they are still in

But they have little hopes of ever cap-turing Gentry or Miller, especially the former. Gentry's past history has demon-strated the fact that he is a hard man to catch. His whole history reads like a romance. He was born and raised in Haralson county. His father is a promi-nent citizen of that county, has often held office, and is in good financitl condi-tion. He is popular among his neighbors.

Asbury Gentry and his brother were al-ways noted for their dare-devil propensities. People who read the newspapers of fourteen months ago will remember their misdeeds. They were accused of nearly all of the lawlessness done in their vicin ity, and they were frequently wanted for horse stealing. A detective tracked and tried to catch up with them, and he came very near losing his life for his pains, by a ynamite explosion. The dynamite was placed under a hotel in which he was stop-placed under a notel in which he was stop-ping. For several weeks before they were captured, the Gentry boys lived in the woods, and Asbury Gentry was finally caught while askeep by the roadside. Gentry's father has made every effort to get his son cleared of the charge of murder. He has paid him frequent visits since he has been in the jail here. It was reported at police headquarters It was reported at police headquarters yesterday morning that a man had been seen riding past Austell on a horse, which answered the description of the horse stolen from Stableman Harper.

MANY SLEEPLESS EYES

Will the Escape of Asbury Gentry Cause Carroll and Harralson.

Carrollton, Ga., January 2.—News of the escape of Asbury from the Atlanta jail last light caused great excitement in Carrollton and Buchanan. He was one of the most noted desperadoes that ever operated in Georgia.

The Gentry gang was a real terror to men and women of Haralson and Carroll counties, and many sleepless eyes will be th result of his escape from Fulton county jail. Gentry made greater reputation in his short career than Jesse James, John A. Murrell or any of the western desperadoes.

George Gentry, Asbury's brother, will be tried this week in Carroll county for horse stealing.

Lansing Burrows, of the Second Baptist church in Augusta, died suddenly this morning at Stellaville, Ga., while waiting at the depot for the train to come to Augusta. Dr. Burrows went to Stellaville yesterday to hold service in his church. He had not been sick recently further than the infirmities of old age. He was born in New York city seventy-nine years ago up to two years ago was pastor of the Freemason church in Norfolk, Va., for ten years. The body was brought to Augusta tonight and will be carried to Richmond, Va., tomorrow for interment. An Interesting Question for Candidate Hilburn.
Will Mr. Hilburn deny that he received $75 to work for one of the sheriff tickets in the late primary? Did he keep the contract? It is well known that he did little or nothing for the ticket he was in honor bound to do his best for. Will he not be as faithless to his contract with widow Davis, especially as he will not be legally bound to carry it out? Who would not rather risk the simple assurance of J. M. Paden that no one, especially Mrs. Davis and children, would ever have cause to complain or assert that he was not fully mindful of the claims of any and every needy and helpless or afflicted confederate soldier or his family residing in the county.

It was the complimentary feast given by ex-Alderman A. M. Reinhardt to the mayor, general council and officials of Atlanta, with all of whom he has had the most pleasant relations during the past five years of his career as an official of the city.

The compliment was thoroughly appreciated by the large company of guests, and the gusto and enthusiasm with which the affair vent off made it one of the memorable events of the season.

The menu was superb, introducing the rarest delicacies of the always well supplied larder of the popular Kimball. Hon. Mr. Reinhardt was the center all evening of the changing groups of fellow-citizens and friends who showered upon him their compliments over the most ex-cellent record he closed last night as coun-cilman, alderman and mayor pro tem. When the substantials had been When discussed the far more sting feast of reaso,n wit and

On calling the assembly to order Judge Anderson paid a glowing tribute to the arduous and honorable service of the host, and called upon that gentleman to tell why he had called this large assembly of ward politicians and salary grabbers together. (Laughter.)

Ex-Alderman Reinhardt made a little speech of welcome and of appreciation for the kind things that had been said to him and of him upon this occasion. He spoke of his loyalty to the interest of the city and the thankfulness with which he contemplated its present condition and the splendid promises of its future.

Ex-Mayor Hemphill was the next speaker. His informal address was one of his best efforts in the oratorical line. It was full of bright wit and good humor. His tribute to the host of the hour was sympathetic and appreciative, and his resume of the official and personal characteristics of each member of the council was full of humorous hits that kept the table in a continual roar of merriment.

Mayor Goodwin was called next and spoke

Mayor Goodwin was called next and spoke with enthusiasm of the progress of the city and the magnitude of its affairs in their municipal administration. He pledged his own endeavors to forward every enterprise that tends to the future greatness and good of the city. His speech was warmly received and drew forth approval that plainly evidenced the regard in which the newly installed cheif magistrate is held.

Colonel George W. Adair, an indispensable guest at every affair in which the fame of Atlanta is to be lauded, then addressed the assemblge in that happy humor of his which none can imitate or rival. His witty ponts and jolly "yarns" were received with profuse enjoyment.

Ex-Mayor George Hillyer then spoke eloquently. He paid gracious compliments to the ability of the new mayor and general council and dilated with affection upon the great works planned and accomplished by other administrations to make Atlanta grand and incomparable. His speech was one of the substantial delights of the occasion. Mayor Goodwin was called next and spoke Alderman Rice responded to a call with some remarks that were timely and instructive. He spoke of the public economies of the city and declared that no city in the city and declared th America got better, purer and more faithful service from its officials than does Atlanta. Ex-Alderman Woodward's speech closed the event of the evening. It was one of those plain, straightforward telks for which Mr. Woodward is noted and his kindly expressions to all his friends and co-workers were heartly appreciated and applanded.

The whole affair was one of those enjoyable episodes that fit themselves into cur memories with deftness and are never lost sight of. Those present will always recall the host and his entertainment with lively feelings of honor and amity. His life and his happiness will always be a personal concern with each of them.

Chief Connolly is enthusiastic in his advocacy of the proposed changes, and is extremely anxious that the petition of the board of police commissioners asking for a sufficent appropriation to make them be made by the council. Speaking of the proposed improvements for 1893 he said:

"We hope to inaugurate during this year many improvements which will make the department as nearly perfect as a police department can be. The city has grown remarkably during the past few years and I don't think any of our citizens can have failed to see the need of two police substations, one to be built on either side of the city. It is proposed to build one on Peters street, as has already been published and one on Marietta street. We want to enlarge the signal system by putting on an additional number of signal boxes. I think as many as ten are needed to put more territory into communication with headquarters.

"We want to make a permanent addition of thirty men to the force. This addition is necessary to cover the city, and this need is one of the most striking evidences of the city's growth.

"Besides the changes we intend to make with the assistance of council, we will take no backward step in the matter of improving the force in drilling and other points. I had hoped to be able to employ a permanent instructor in drilling. We have splendid arrangements for drilling at the new headquarters. On the top floor is a large drill hall built especially for the purpose and there is no reason why the men should not be kept in excellent training after we get quartered in our new building. Attached to the drill hall is a gymnasium for the men, where they can get the physical training necessary."

ed to the drill hall is a gymnasium for the men, where they can get the physical training necessary."

The new headquarters is being pushed forward to completion so that it can be occuped by the 1st of February. The heavy work is already completed and what remains to be done is to put on the finishing touches. Heating and water apparatuses have already been fixed in the building, and the rooms have all been plastered, doors hung, windows put in, and, in fact, all but completed.

hung, windows put in, and, in fact, all but completed.

In company with Chief Connolly, a reporter went through the building yesterday afternoon. The building is perfect in its appointments, and the work has been done in the best and latest style. The front of the building is imposing and grand looking. No other public building in the city is so thoroughly adapted and equipped for the purpose for which it is intended as the new central police station.

The lower floor is occupied by the station house keeper's office to the right of the entrance, the roll call room is directly in front of the main entrance, with the different prison apartments in the rear. The cells are arranged in most excellent style. First are two rows of cells in which white males are two rows of cells in which white males will be kept: Further back are three rows of cells for colored males, and in the extreme rear are the cells for colored females. Directly above these cells, on the second floor, are the rooms where the white females will be imprisoned. These are not cells but are rooms with windows firmly secured by iron bars. One large room is set apart for the use of the police matron. There is no police matron at present, but as soon as the new station house is moved into, Chief Connolly, will appoint one.

The recorder's court room is on the same floor with the quarters to 1.4 occupied by the white females. It is in the front of the building and is reached by a stairway leading up from the front, and by another from an alleyway on the east side of the building. The courtroom is the largest, prettiest, and by all odds the most perfectly appointed courtroom in the city. It is supplied with raised seats in numbers sufficient to according the police court crowds. The judge's stand is confined within a railing, inside of which, policemen, defendants and lawyers will sit. Windows open into the room from every side and

The change from the present stuffy, smoky courtroom to the new room will be great. Adjoining the courtroom is an omee for the recorder.

Chief Connolly's office is close by. He will occupy a large and elegant suite of room facing on Lecatur street. A bathroom and lavatory are attached. The chief will furnish his rooms with elegant furniture, selected with his own good taste. Directly above Chief Connolly's room is Chief of Defectives Wright's office. Chairman Turner was the first man to Cross the Forsyth street bridge.

The structure needs some finishing touches, but as yesterday was the last of Chairman Turner's official term, it was determined that he should have the pleasure of crossing that he should have the pleasure of crossing it first.

Superintendent McKee haid stringers across several spans, over which flooring has not yet been placed, and at 10 o'clock all was in readiness.

There were gathered at the Alabama street end Chairman Turner, Mayor Hemphill, Alderman Stephens and Shropshire, and Messrs Hugh Inman, W. P. Inman, W. C. Sanders, W. M. Dickson, Colonel R F. Maddox and other distinguished citizens.

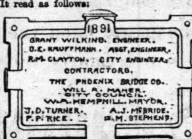

"I have urged this work for ten years," said Colonel Maddox. "Move on Dr. Turner and show us the way."

"I will cross it if I have to coon it," said Alderman Stephens.
"It is the grandest stride Atlanta has yet made," joined in Hugh Inman.

The March Taken Up. With a wave of his hand and "follow me," Dr. Turner led the way. Crossing the first two spans on stringers, the party found itself upon the solid iron bed of the struct-

"Storms may blow," said Mr. W. P. Inman. "but they cannot shake this."
"This wipes out north and south Atlanta," said Mr. Dickson, "and makes us one people."
In a large box lying on the floor centerwise on the bridge laid the dedication plate. It read as follows:

After twenty minutes examination the party kept up its journey to the other end. Standing on the span in front of the old capitol the party came to a halt and Mayor Hemphill called on Chairman Turner for a speech

Chairman Turner's Speech.

"Gentlemen," said he, "this is the proudest moment of my life. Like every other man I desire to have a monument to show for my work. This bridge, magnificent in design and solid in foundation, like Atlanta, will stand for ages to tell of the administration of Mayor Hemphilt. (Cheers.) I am glad that it has been my fortune to take part as chairman of the council committee in a work which hooks Atlanta together with bands of steel."

Colonel Maddox—"Three cheers for Turner," which were given.

Chairman Turner—"I want to say that the council which expires tonight has made every arrangement for its completion, and that I have seen the money laid away which is for the sole purpose of paying every cent due on the bridge so that nothing rests on our successors. (Cheers.) We have a solid city, and in retiring from office—"

Hugh Inman—"We'll call you back again."

work done and satisfied that such a noble nonument as we now stand upon is here to ell our children's children of what we have The bridge will be ready for travel on the first day of March

ATLANTA, GA., January 3, 1893.

A Good Showing.

The reports made by Mayor Hemphill and other city officials at the meeting of the council vesterday, and published in this issue, make a gratifying showing.

The mayor's report makes a splendid exhibit of Atlanta's progress during the past year. The growth of the city and the expansion of her institutions and improve ments have been all that could reasonably be desired. A most encouraging feature of the report is the statement that, since the council's special committee on freight discrimination went to work, the matter has assumed a most satisfactory shape, and Major Stahlman authorizes the announcement that the discriminations against our citizens on certain classes of freight will be at once remedied. This promises inestimable benefits to our con merce and industries, and is a long stip forward. 1 14 18 M

Chairman Frank P. Rice and his fina nee committee have good reason to be proud of their report. The city had in the treasury, at the expiration of the old year, $367,975.65, leaving, exclusive off the charter surplus and money set aside for improvements and outstanding warrants, a cash surplus of $6,038.24. The city's total income for 1891 was $1.5' 10.141.60. and $2,241,174.78 for 1892. This large increase is partly accounted for in the sale of three-quarters of a million dollars' worth of city bonds, but the natural increase is between seventy and eighty thousand dollars.

The showing made for streets and sewers is a splendid one, and the state ment is made that, during the past year, 1,048 houses have been prected, at a cost of over $2,500,000.

Mr. Rice and his associates on the finance committee hrave made a fine record. The chairma a did not desire a reappointment, and he can well afford to retire on his laurels so well earned and worthily worn.

His successor, Hon. H. C. Stockdell, so well known as a clear-headed financier and man of business that his appointment will be hailed with pleasure. The new men eminently fitted for the discharge of their duties, and it is safe to predict that their work will give general satisfaction. The retiring officials and their successor have the thanks and the implicit confidence of the entire community.

The new council, which assumed the duties of office last night, is composed of a body of men in whose hands the city can place its important trust, and with the utmost confidence. Mayor Goodwin has been tried before, and, having already served the city as mayor, and for many years as city attorney, he returns to his old work with a ripe experience, and better fitted than ever to discharge the important responsibilities of the mayoralty. He is a worthy official head for the municipality, and has an able body of coadjutors and counselors to assist him in the successful administration of the city's affairs.

Atlanta never had a better council than the one which organized last night, and this is said without reflecting any discredit on its predecessor, which has made a record for progress and development which places it, in the history of the city, as among the very best Atlanta ever had.

Begin the Work Now.

The movement in favor of good roads is rapidly taking practical shape in New York state, and it is to be hoped that the example will spread to the middle states. and thence to the south. Fulton and Floyd counties have already set an exam ple to their neighbors, but this example seems to be too near home to have any in ence. There are a great many people in the east who will not read an American book until it has been favorably commented upon by the London periodicals. These people are fewer in number now than they were ten years ago, but they are still too numerous.
Something of the same feeling prevails in the south in regard to the endor of the north. It is true, the feeling is not nowerful or influential, but it affects very seriously a great many projects and enterprises that have their origin here. It involves the energy that is a necess quality in those who take the initiative Naturally, the poverty of our people has something to do with the lack of in terest in the road problem, but they are no poorer now than when they taxed elves heavily in order to enjoy the aefits of railroads. They have gone far in this direction-perhaps too farbut we do not question either the present the ultimate value of the inves

But those who look forward to the ture must be aware of the fact that the railway investment, in order to be made to yield the most fruitful results, will have to be supplemented by a system of good public roads. These public roads when they are brought up to the proper standard of excellence, will be invaluable as feeders to the rullroads, and this fea-

It is useless to talk about improving our present system—or lack of system—of working the public roads. It is a system that came in with the republic, and is as primitive a method as plowing with a heifer. It will have to be abolished. There is not a county in the state but can make a quarter of a mile of permanent roadway in a year, and some of them are ble to do much more.

Some little towns in New York state have subscribed $50,000 toward the making of good roads. The people there do not go through the formula of taxing themselves by law; they subscribe, and thus put the wheels of progress in motion

Permanent roadways will wost me rey, but the cost can be spread out over a series of years, and in this way not be a drain on the resources of any commu alty.

Correcting Dr. Griffin.

Dr. Eli Griffin is a candidate for re-election as county physician. Se reral days ago The Constitution, in a local article in reference to the approach ing election of his successor, stated that, on account of Dr. Griffin's well-known thard party proclivities, he would scarcely figure as a probability in the choice of ae official who is to administer medical dvice to the county's wards for the next two years.

This seems to have exercised the doctor against whom, personally, nothing can be argued in his race to succeed himself, but rhose political record is certainly such as to have justified at least mere local reference in the ordinary run of news gossip concerning the election.

The doctor wrote a card to The Constitution, in which he stated that he was a democrat from away back, and reiterated his democratic loyalty in thundering

The Constitution published this, but the doctor is not yet satisfied. He again refutes, in an evening contemporary, the imputation that he was a true democrat, and belabors himself for vindication from what he calls "the attack" on the part of The Constitution. In his last card, the

It is charged, too, that I am not a democrat, when the truth is I have never voted other than the democratic ticket. Under that faith I have lived to grow old and gray.

The Constitution has no attack to make on Dr. Griffin, but, since he has brought the subject up again, we deem it our duty to keep him on the track, and to call his attention to the fact that he probably forgot himself in his statement that he has never voted other than the democratic ticket.

The doctor announces owenly that he voted against Governor Northen in the last election. Not only that, but Dr. Griffin occupied a prominent position as third party campaigner, and we believe he was selected once or twice as the personal representative of Mr. Taliaferro when that distinguished gentleman was running for congress as the third party ters in behalf of accuracy. The Constitution has no further interest than that of any good citizen, in the election of a county physician, but, if Dr. Griffin is running on his democratic record, it is just as well to give him the full benefit

An Unfortunate Episode.

To every person in Atlanta who is acquainted with Mr. W. J. Willingham, of this city, the report of his arrest in Chicago partakes more of the humorous than of the serious, for, with all who know him. he has established a reputation for sincerity and honesty which at once bespoke the injustice of his arrest on the trivial charge of disorderly conduct.

Mr. Willingham not only belongs to one of Georgia's best and truest families, but he is, himself, one of the most exemplary and conscientious members of that wellknown family, noted throughout the state for its sterling integrity. Our Chicago special this morning tells the story of his prompt release yesterday, and gives the absurd details of his arres It strikes us that Mr. Willingham has been the victim of a very brash piece of business, and the fact that it is deplored by the good citizens of Chicago shows it to be one of those unfortunate occurrences that reflect discredit on the offenders and do not injure, in the slightest, the victim. as Mr. Willingham has been m this in

A Substantial Addition to the Currency Secretary Charles Foster is not among those who engage in blind condemnation of the present silver law. Our purchases of silver, he says, have added $120,000. 000 to the currency of the country, and then he asks how the banks could have got along without this currency. The addition that has been made to the currency is one of the redeeming features of law; but why should Mr. Foster ask how the banks could have got along without it? It is well know at those who control the leading banks of the country are in favor of contracting the ourrency, and this silver law is "inflating" it month after month to the extent of the cost of the four and a half million ounces of silver bullion purchased. Anything that will lower the rate of interest by making money more plentiful in the ordinary channels of business is called "inflation," and the controlling banks and other agents of the money power imwith alarm. Nevertheless, it is not by any means an alarming situation. If there is to be no further step in the direction of silver remonetization the silver act is a very good thing to keep eed worry about the banks. The secre would have got along without this addi-tion of $120,000,000 to the currency. In point of fact, they would have got along very poorly without it. How have they got along with it? Let the yearly report of Dun's commercial agency make the of Dun's commercial agency make the reply. That report says that the pas year has been the most prosperous that the business of the country has had since 1878. This result is assuredly to be traced, in part, to the substantial additions made to our currency by the silver law of July 14, 1890.

Once again, we ask the experts—the editors and the leading bankers—what the effect of the unconditional repeal of that law will be on the finances of the United States? They needn't all speak at once. They will have plenty of time between now and the regular session of the nev congress in 1894.

Folk Lore Investigations.

The recent session of the American Folk Lore Society has attracted unusual attention in the newspapers, and, according to all reports, it must have been the most interesting meeting of the kind ever held in this country. Referring to a paper read by Professor Adolf Gerber, of Earlham college, Richmond, Ind., The Richmond Times has this paragraph:

The American Folk Lore Society met a day or two ago in Boston, and discussed the dif-ficulty of separating true from false American folk lore. The Cleveland Plain Dealer sug-gests that Joel Chandler Harris, the creator gests that Joel Chandler Harris, the creator of "Uncle Remus" and the transcriber of the negro folk lore stories of that same old darky, might contribute some of his personal experiences on that point. In his first volume of "Uncle Remus" literature he prefaced learnedly on the subject of folk lore. In the preface of his latest volume, however, he sadly confesses that the more he investigated the less he knew and that he has abandoned the subject in despuir. The reason of this is that negroes in different parts of the south, and especially in Georgia, all have different enunclation and idioms as well as phrases. So much is this the case that an up country Georgia negro cannot understand a low country darky and vice-versa.

These remarks need illumination. The preface of the new Uncle Remus book loes not strike us as in any sense a sad confession, and if our contemporary dis covers in it a note of despair it is because he is inclined to do injustice to the spirit by giving a too literal interpretation. As an avocation, the investigation of the mysteries of folk lore has its claims but the author of Uncle Remus has found the collection of folk lore stories simpler and more interesting than their elucidation. That branch of the subject requires special knowledge and patience. It is, in fact, a profession. It is a poor cook that can't bake a hoecake, but how many cooks can break their hoecake and tell you what kind of soil the corn that made the meal was grown on? That belongs to a department of chemistry. On the other hand, we wouldn't give a thrip thousand for hoecakes cooked by a hemist.

We do not know whether The Richmond Times or The Cleveland Plain Dealer is responsible for the concluding sentence of the paragraph which we have quoted. But it makes a trivial matter absurd.

We cannot imagine what connection there is between the differences in negro enunciation or pronunciation in Georgia or elsewhere, and the effort to trace the origin of the negro stories. The jabbering Gullah negro of the coast tells identically the same stories as the negroes of the ipland cotton plantations, and the negroes of Central and South America.

Professor Gerber says the probability is that the animal stories came from India. It is just this probability that makes the investigations of the folk lorists interest-There is a probability behind every story.

Our Rich Men and Our Colleges. The Rev. Dr. W. A. Candler's letter in nother column, discussing the comparative liberality of rich men, north and south, in the matter of our colleges, makes very interesting reading. It is certainly a startling fact that the Gammon School of Theology, since its recent bequest of $750,000, is by far the richest college in Georgia. It is now worth $1,100,000, and Clark university of which it is a part, is worth more than Emory, Mercer and the University of Athens combined.

While wealthy northern men are pouring out money like water into the coffers of these institutions for negro education, they are also giving with unexampled liberality to the white colleges of the north. Mr. Rockefeller has given $3,600, 000 to the Chicago university; Mr. Armou has given over one million dollars, and promises another million shortly to industrial education in Chicago, while Dartmouth, Andover and other colleges have received splendid donations.

Naturally, Dr. Candler feels despondent when he surveys the southern situation and sees that little or nothing is being done to help our southern colleges. He compares two states of nearly equal population—Massachusetts and Georgia and shows that the former's college endowments were worth, in 1891, $10,650, 000, while Georgia's amounted to only $775,000. The benefactions to colleges in Massachusetts, in 1891, amounted to $807.813; in Georgia, $51,000. The doctor declares that we are falling behind in this matter, instead of advancing, and he dismisses the suggestion that our poverty since the war is the explanation with the statement that before the war our wealthy men gave less to the colleges than they give now. He urges southern rich men not to neglect our higher educational interests, and appeals to their patriotism and sense of duty.

We agree with Dr. Candler that our colleges for southern whites deserve a better fate, but we do not say that we should approximate the showing made by an old and wealthy state like Massachusetts. Some well-known Georgians have made handsome donations to our educational institutions, and, doubtless others will follow their example in the near future. The active material development of this region keeps the capital of our rich men tied up, and there is no great amount of surplus cash to be invested, loaned or given away. And yet, when this is considered, the fact still re-mains that our moneyed men are very backward when it comes to giving away we cannot allow by see allowing forget languish while negro education forget languish while negro education forget languish while our seed to be seen that the state of the seed of the se heavy endowments. We must bestir our elves, or our educational situati operate to our disadvantage and repel nigration and capital.

A Debtor and His Creditors. Just at present, the newspapers have good deal to say about "Deacon" S. V. White, of New York, and his wonderful achievement of paying off all his creditors in less than a year after his failure in

Mr. White was unsuccessful in an ttempt to corner the corn market, and his liabilitites were about $1,000,000. He made up his mind to pay every cent with interest, and he accomplished the task in eleven months. He operated boldly, and everything he touched seemed to go his way. He profited by every notable move ment, and, whenever he could afford it, he sent a check to his creditors. His last check, drawn December 31st, was for $200,000.

The honorable course of this debtor de serves high praise, but two things were in his favor. He had a rapid run of successful speculation. But, before he struck that rich vein, it should be recolected that his creditors "signed off" their claims, and trusted his pledge to make them good. This left him in a position to resume his place in the stock exchange and made his way smooth. If the creditors had pressed White to the wall and stripped him of everything, it is not likely that he would now be entering the new year with a clear ledger. Under the circumstances, we think that the creditors in this case deserve as much praise as the

New English Law.

A recent murder trial in an English court does not speak well for the adminstration of justice in that country.

It seems that a Mr. Frederick Claude Vernon Harcourt was talking politics when a man called him a liar. Mr. Harcourt was an aristocrat: his insulter was a plebeian. The gentleman struck the other man and killed him.

Perhaps the name of defendant influenced both bench and jury. The judge said in his charge: "If one man calls another a Mar, I think a slight blow in retaliation is justifiable. This may be new law, but it is common sense." The jury took the hint, and returned a verdict of acquittal.

Now, in this case, the judge practically assumed the role of an attorney for the defense. He was right in intimating that he was announcing new law. The old English law has always justified such a killing only when the slayer found it impossible to save his own life by retreating from his assailant. Nor was a man permitted to inflict violent punishment for opprobrious words.

PUBLIC OPINION IN GEORGIA

The Darien Gazette knows more than a large lot of men who think they know it all. It "The Potiphar Peagreens say that Atlanta wants everything. Well, Atlanta is entitled to a good share of the earth."

The Augusta Herald has the following commentary, which we hand over to the law officers of the commonwealth for serious perusal:

"The remedy for the overdoing of the killing business in Georgia is the stern and earnest application of the law. There have been far too many killings in our state of late."

The Savannah Tribune, one of our most sensible negro exchanges, has an item which will shed some light for our northern brethres upon the problem of negro non-voting in Georgia. It is this:

"Let it not be said next week that your vote was bought. Stay away from the polis if you have no choice of candidates."

The Valdosta Times, contemplating the aftermath of the populist movement in Georgia, philosophises upon the situation thusly: "Experience is always a dear teacher, but the third party people have paid about the highest tuition, in turmoil and trouble, in bitter disappointment, and big round dollars of any set of pupils that we ever read

The Thomasville Times, edited by that gallant veteran, Captain John Triplett, asys:
"It is likely that the Soldiers' Home will be made an issue in the next state campaign. By all means left the issue be made, and squarely made. The people of Georgia have always favored the home."

The Savannah News feels, as the great mass of the democrats of the union do, that this is no time for divisions in our camp. It remarks:

"Speaker Crisp is not an 'anti-Cleveland anything.' For he himself hath said it, and it's greatly to his credit.' Others might do well to follow his example, which would do much toward wiping out factional feeling. Every democrat in congress should be a plain and simple democrat, without qualification of any kind."

Governor Northen, in The Southern Cultiva-tor, has an article which the farmers of Georgia would find it profitable to read and inwardly digest. Speaking of the perversion of the once great alliance movement, the of the once great alliance movement, the governor says:

"In its beginning the alliance seemed to be an inspiration for good. It appears now to be a combination of forces within itself for its own destruction. Can we not get together the better elements after eliminating its evils and restore it to its original purpose and usefulness?"

The Brunswick Advertiser regrets, as every good Georgian does, that no appropriation could be made to secure a proper state representation at the Columbian exposition. Built says "the law should control," and wisely adds:

"The practice of arousing public opinion to override settled principles of law is an evil of the times. Evasion of statutes under the cover of spontaneous sympathy is a road to ruin that generally leaves the fragments of wreckage strewn by its wayside."

wreckage strewn by its wayside."

The Brunswick Times is earnest and urgent in its desire to see southern men lay hold upon their opportunities and enjoy the fraits that flow from personal enterprise in developing and utilizing our latent, unexplored resources. Here is the true and awakening fashion in which it states the case:

"The lover of the south and southern people, during recent years, has often been made sad by seeing the sons of the south supplanted in many fields of southern enterprise by men from the north and the west. In many a case the southern man has owned fertile acces, which to him were profitiess, and has sold them to find some enterprising northerner, westerner or foreigner reap wealth where poverty was before suffered. It is not waiting, but work intelligently directed we need."

Napoleon described Talleyrand as one whose face would preserve a smile while he was being kicked from behind. Talleyrand had his revenge says The San Francisco Argonaut.

"It is a pity," he said, "that so great a man should have such bad manners." And the mote will cling to Napoleon forever. Macaulay has said the same thing in comparing Caesar with Mapoleon:

"But after all, Caesar was a gentleman." The word "gentleman" could never be applied to the modern Caesar. He twitted a lady whom he had forced into the household of the Empress Josephine with the fact that she was marked by the small pox, and received the retort:

"A Frenchman would never have told me that. When Mine. de Talleyrand was presented at court, he had nothing more gracious to say than:

"I hope that the conduct of Mine. Talleyrand will cause the levities of Mine. Grand to be forgotten." an insuit which drew forth the retoinder:

"I could not follow a better example than that of Citorenne Bonaparte." Sharp Retorts.

Sewers and Drains.

Sewers and Drains.

Not only should lateral sewers be run, to accompany water mains where there is demand for water and a willingness to pay sewer assessments, but as early as practicable the trunk sewers should be extended to the corporate-limits for the comfort and health of the people; and the extension of these trunk sewers is, if possible, more important than lateral sewerage, for the latter can be made to depend largely upon the demand for it.

Street Paving and Street Work.

This subject is important and will continue to be for years to come. The growth of the city frequently comands the opening of thoroughfares to give the people access to and from the different parts of the city. There is now, mad will be until it can be accomplished a constant demand, from a large population in the western portion of the city, for the extension of Alabama street, or for the opening of some street to give that section more direct communication with the center of the city; and the extension of Alabama street would seem the best accomplishment of this purpose; and this matter should receive the earnest attention of the general council of 1893, as that portion of the city has not had equal advantages in that respect with other sections, and a as justice seems to require that relief should be given here as soon as practicable. Before entering upon it careful estimates should be made as to the cost and character of the work and bridges necessary. This is certainly an information which can be obtained with accuracy, and on it will depend when the work should be begun, and whether it can be accomplished in one two or three years with justice to other municipal interests. The right of way for this extension through the poperty of the state has been secured and paid for by the city, and that obstacle no longer exists.

With regard to street paving, I have always myored and still favor the carrying on of this chas of work as it can be afforded by the dity with ustice to other demands, and where there is a demand and sentiment on a street favorable to such paving, especially where the pavement desired is on a street which is improved with business houses or residences.

It does not follow in any case that a street should be paved because one-third of the frontage is signed for: for it may happen that the majority of the frontage ownership would be opposed to it, or that the city could not aff

Throughout the address the mayor had the most careful attention of his audience and as he concluded he was roundly applauded.
"I now declare the council of 1892 adjourned sine die," he said, "and call upon Hon. John B. Goodwin to ake the chair."

As he spoke ex-Mayor Hemphill walked down from the stand he has been occupying for two years and Mayor-elect Goodwin started up. At the same time the members of the council of '92 shuffled reluctantly out of the chairs in which they had been sitting and walked away into the center of the council chamber. Those of the old council who had just completed their first year moved up into the senior chair and the members-elect walked timidly around to the vacant chairs.

Mr. Goodwin Swors In.

As Mr. Goodwin sworn In.

As Mr. Goodwin stepped on the top step of the stand Judge Clarke faced him with a Bible in one hand and a long piece of paper in the other. Mr. Goodwin had been through the same thing once before and knew what was coming. He grasped the Bible firmly and as Judge Clarke read the oath of office Mr. Goodwin repeated it, and at the conclusion accepted the written oath to which he attached his signature.

That made him the mayor of Atlanta for the next two years.

The New Members Take the Oath.

"Now," said Mayor Goodwin, "Mr. Clerk, please call the two aldermen-elect and let them be sworn in."

the Gate City Guards and a good old citizen known as C. R. Hanleiter. The boys were going away to battle for their homes and no one knew who would ever come back. Mr. Hanleiter had been taught that the Bible was a companion when one was in trouble, and out of his pocket bought enough to supply the entire company. Each squad in the company was given two Bibles and in one squad was Marshal Jim Loyd. All through the war Jim Loyd carried that Bible, and when the war was over it was the only thing he had left for his four years of hard work. He brought it home with him and last night when the city hall was found to be without a Bible Marshal Loyd thought of the old war relic and brought it out.

And it was upon that Bible that the present mayor and members of the council took the oath of office.

The Bible is old and worn, but it will never keep better than the promises that were made upon it last night.

Mayor Goodwin's Address.

Mayor Goodwin said:
Gentlemen of the General Council: Important work is in the line of our duty, and much of our time and attention will be expected and required in discharging it.

The affairs of this city can and should be administered on business principles, and with the greatest possible efficiency, and with the least proper expense. The taxes paid by the people for the support of the city government should not be wasted, but applied to intelligent and efficient public service. If the revenues paid into the city treasury happen to be wasted through want of intelligent comprehension of the needs of the departments, it is no less a waste and loss than if misdirection or misapplication had been designed. If, in our work, we can deserve and receive the good will and sympathy of the people whom we represent, this will illustrate the ideal city government, and this result should be attainable, for there should be no occasion for re-

Waterworks. Waterworks. That great enterprise for Atlanta, the new waterworks system, must be carried to completion, and I am advised that this can be done with a balance on hand and with the proceeds of the sale of the $182,000 of bonds already authorized but not yet sold. These funds will not, however, be sufficient to provide for an additional reservoir and main pipeline, the duplication of which the water board recommend, and which may be deemed a necessary precaution. It is doubtful whether a further issue of bonds for this purpose could be provided for by the requisite vote, and it is, therefore, possible that funds from the ordinary iscome may have to be supplied if it shall be definitely determined that this character of work is necessary to be done the present year. Care must be taken to guard well this subject, for if the system itself can be completed without the duplication suggested by the water board (or with it by the further issue of bonds as recommended by the board) still the demand for laying water mains, to afford the benefit of the new works, will be upon us and must be met, at least to the extent that the people desire it sufficiently to pay sewer assessments to accompany the water mains. With a bountful supply of water and the people desiring it and willing to pay for sewerage to get it, the city ought to be in condition to respond to the demands for water supply. Until completed and mains extended for its supply, this work overshadows, in importance, anything else before us, and both the water commissioners and the committee on waterworks have an important duty to perform in connection with the board of water commissioners in the progress of this work, and keeping the J. Judge Landrum's Candidacy.

Editor Constitution—It is well to bear in mind that Judge Landrum has made one of the most efficient and popular justices our city has ever had. He has quietly and conscientiously discharged his duties without dabbling in city politics or offering to run for every office that became vacant.

Dr. Foute, his opponent, has a sinecure in his position as station house keeper; his salary is equally as large as the fees of the office he seeks; his family self-sustaining.

On the other hand, if Judge Landrum is defented, he has no position to fail back on; his children are small, and three of them totally blind, and dependent on Judge Landrum for every cent the family expends. The judge, by means of his office, has been enabled to school his blind children. One has finished her course and two others are now at school, but will be unable to remain if their father is turned out of office. It is the desire of Judge Landrum, when the education of his children is finished, to buy for his family a little home.

If he (Judge Landrum) had been inefficient or objectionable the above considerations would count for nothing in this race. But when his integrity has never been questioned, his capability is acknowledged; his firmness a subject of remark; his demeasor, in and out of office, universally commended, what reason is there for turning him out? Bringing home those blind eyes untutored: putting the family in the hands of landlords for the rest of their lives?

City Lights.

A consideration of the contract for lighting the city with are and incaindescent electric lights, and the report of the committee on that subject for the year 1892, will show, as it appears to me, that we are paying too much for the cost of lighting the city, and unless a modification of this rate can be obtained, great care should be exercised in placing any other lights mult this contract shall have terminated by limitation or otherwise, or until the city shall have erected an electric plant of its own for lighting the streets of the city and for furnishing it to private consumers, if the latter be also deemed proper. It is believed that a great saving to the city would result from ownership of an electric plant. A thorough investigation should immediately be made with regard to this by the committee on electric lights, and I would recommend correspondence with every city in the United States using electric lights by contract or ownership, and also the getting of all information possible as to the cost of providing a unitable plant. It is a matter of regret that when electric street lights were introduced here, the gas posts, which were for-

No people in the country take a more cive interest in the government of a city than the people of Atlanta take in the legislation which forms a part of the tory of the city. This was enough to mw the many to the city hall last night see the change which takes place in the city government every two years.

The general council of '92 held its last ting in the council chamber during e afternoon, and, after receiving the orts of the standing committees for he year, adjourned to meet again at 7 clock in the evening. It was at that ession that the council chamber was bronged with those who take an interest in the affairs of the city. Every member of the old body, except Mr. Woodward, of the aldermanic board, who was a ninent seeker for the position to which Mr. Goodwin was elevated, and Mr. Mc-Waters, of the third ward, who is quite sick at home, and Mr. Murphy, of the ourth ward, were present. All the members-elect were on hand, as also was Hon. Marshall J. Clarke, of the superior pourt, who has sworn in every mayor Atlanta has had in the last score of years. The Work Begins.

Mayor Pro Tem. Reinhardt ascended the stand for the last time at 7 o'clock, and called the body, over which he had esided for the past two years, to order. As the members took their seats, the mayor pro tem. remarked in a doleful

"Mr. Clerk, please call the roll." That was the last time that Mayor Pro Tem. Reinhardt ever asked for the roll

As the clerk's voice died out, Mr. Turner arose. On the left lapel of his Prince Albert was pinned the prettiest boquet that ever has been seen in the council chamber. It was a fragrant one, too, and was admired by those who had no boquets.

"I move," said Mr. Turner, "that we go into the election of a city attorney to succeed the Hon. John B. Goodwin." There was an unmistakable ting of sadness about the gentleman's voice. He was probably thinking that within a half hour he would not be a member of the council, and that he was making his last talk.

The motion was carried, and then Mayor Hemphill came to the chair with the bearing of a lord. He seemed to realize that he would soon be out of that class, and, as he took the gavel in his hand, there was every evidence of the pride he felt. But, as Mayor Pro Tem. Reinhardt stepped out, there was a sadness about him that all readily understood. He was going out of the chair which he had oc-much dignity.

"Now," said Mr. Turner as the mayor assumed the chair, "I nominate for city attorney Hon. James A. Anderson the present assistant, and in doing so desire to say that Atlanta has never had a more competent and careful officer than Judge Anderson."

Mayor Pro Tem. Reinhardt was quick in securing the floor and seconded the nom-ination for Judge Anderson. And on the roll call he was elected without a dissenting voice. As the vote was being taken Judge Anderson was busy writing and as the result was announced he passed a paper to the city clerk which was read. That paper informed the general council that he wanted as his assistant Mr. Fulton Colvill and with a good will the prophers and the prophers and the state of the control of the prophers and the state of the control of the prophers and the control of the prophers and the proph will the members endorsed the sugges-

Gentlemen of the General Council—Two years have elapsed since I took the oath of office of mayor of this great city. These two years have passed into history, and tonight we are called upon to summarize what has been done by this and the preceding council. I can tratifully assert that the course of the city has been upward and dorward, and at this time she occupies a higher position than ever before in her career. During my term of office many conventions have been held in our city. Some of the representative people of sery state in this union have composed these bothes. I believe that a favorable impression of the progress and thrift of this city has been made upon nearly every visitor, and the reputation of Atlanta has been extended to the uttermost borders of this nation. I can lay down the obsess and insignis of office with the outselousness that I have done the best I could. It is sweet to have the approval of my people. To deserve this is my highest ambition. The vork of the past two years has never been equated by any two years of Atlanta's history. The councils of 1891 and 1892 have appreciated and understood what the city needed, and the members were equal to the emergency in all instances. In my inaugural I suggested and the members were equal to the emergency and the members were equal to the emergency in all instances. Health and Sanitary Affairs' thanta's health record is a strong point our favor, and every encouragement and per expense should be willingly made to p it so, or to make a still better record of this is no small matter, as it involves question of good sewerage and the real of garbage in the area having sewerage, the removal of night soil, and garbage side of the area having sewerage. I consider the view, which I believe prevaits genight that the sanitary limits should be existed to embrace the entire limits of the city, that proper provisions be made for services of health and cleanliness.

Fire Department.

Fire Department. I deem it unnecessary to make other than rery general reference to this department; for its efficiency is conceded by all, and has better equipment than heretofore; and, with a better supply of water so near at hand, will doubtless surpass its former record, and bring even lower insurance rates than now pre-

Public Buildings and Grounds.

Pablic Buildings and Grounds.

While the city has now two waterwarks plants, many and valuable school buildings and grounds, free engine houses and grounds, police station and grounds, the L. P. Grant park, the stockade farm, and the sanitary dumping grounds, it has no city hall building for its headquarters and official work. The city officers are now tenants, in a rented building; and nearly all of the departments are pressed and crowded for room; and steps should be taken during the present year at least to secure a lot on which to erect a suitable building for the transaction of the public business by the city officers, and for the safety and perservation of the valuable records and books belonging to the city. The building, when erected should be in keeping with the city, and should be built with reference to the city's needs and adapted to its use. The Liquor Traffic.

The Liquor Traffic.

The good results of confining the liquor traffic to the business portion of the city and within police protection, and enforcement of strict regulations in connection with it, are found in the unity and peace of the people who were lately divided upon this subject.

This unity and peace are indispensable to the prosperity of the city, and should not be imperiled by placing the liquor traffic in residence communities, and there should be no relaxation in the regulation as to hour or otherwise. The interests of this city are two important to be disturbed by the question of whether a license should be granted at a particular place. An applicant for license at an improper place would be less to blame, if he obtained it, than the city government by granting it. The applicant would be moved by his personal desire and interest, while the city government should look to the good of the city and decide wisely. In dealing with subject, firmness and justice are regulation on the part of the general council, and all that was every promised preliminary to the restoration of the Heense system should be carried out in letter and spirit; and one feature of it liable to be overlooked I will mention, and that is the character of the person to be entrusted with a li-license; for, on this much depends as to the kind of order that may be expected at a licensed place.

Relief.

To sid those deserving and in need of ft is a demand of humanity, but involves care to avaid imposition by undeserving claimants. To the care and supervision of the relief committee and warden this subject is committeed until some better system can be devised. The lieve that if we had in the city an organized or united board of charities, representing all the charitable efforts, people, societies and churches, to which the city would appropriate its proper fund, and be represented on the board, that far bette results would follow; and with such a system the deserving would be reached and the undeserving found out.

Committees, Boards, Officers and Departs.

Committees, Boards, Officers and Depart-

In entering upon official work we may congratulate ourselyes on the general efficiency of the various departments of the city government, including the different boards and officers. The most of these are especially efficient, capable and attentive; but, while this is so, it is none the less the duty of committees of your body keeping thoroughly advised of the condition and work of their respective departments, and they should be expected at any and all times to keep in communication with boards and officers, and thus keep thoroughly posted with the operations of their respective departments.

The perquisite or fee system, as compensation for any of the officers of the city, will cause on the list of July next. The system grew up without the fault of the officers receiving the fees; but the city has outgrown the system, and should never return to it. I think all fees should be abolished, commencing from next July, except as against those who make default in payment of tax or license, within the time fixed for such payment.

As there are many committees, and as each member is assigned to service on several committees, there has been too great a tendency to devolve committees. But all committees, there has been too great a tendency to devolve committee work upon the chairmen of the committees. But all committees, as far as possible. Especially is this true with the more important committees.

mittee, as far as possible. Especially is this trae with the more important committees.

The course recommended will involve some additional labor, but no work is more important than the work of the city, and I have no question that each and every one of you will cheerfully do your full duty, and thereby contribute to the goo of the service and successful municipal work.

I appreciate fully the rights of the general council and its members, and I do not enter you may term with any view that the mayor make? constitutes the city government. for he could do very little indeed without the coperation and the support of the general council. But this co-operation, I am sure. Will be mutual, for I am conscious that we all have the same end in view, and that is the best service and the greatest good that we call have the same end in view, and that is the best service and the greatest good that we call accomplish for our constituents during our official connection with the city.

The Work of the Session.

As the mayor concluded he was greeted with applause, and as he left the stand Mayor Pro Tem. Shropshire stepped up and took charge of affairs.

Mr. Beatie was the first member to secure the floor.

"I have there," he said, "a resolution to have Love street worked, and I want the work done at once and—"

"If you have such a resolution," said Mayor Pro Tem. Shropshire, "let it be read and then you can talk about it as much as you please, but you can't discuss it until it has been read."

Mr. Beatie has been in the council before and has been a member of more than one legislative body, but still was somewhat surprised when he was called down. He smiled though and had the resolution read and then resolution passed.

Mr. Broyles, from his new chair in the and then resumed his talk. It was a great deal of work that the paper called for, and the resolution passed.

Mr. Broyles, from his new chair in the aldermanic bourd, was the next one up, and he had a resolution directing that all street work should be done by the street commissioner in the order in which it was passed up.

Mr. Hirsch had a resolution, asking that $1,600 be given the Grady hospital for a six-foot stone wall in the rear of the building. Mr. Hirsch declared that the appropriation was essential and the resolution was adopted.

Mr. Rico has a resolution calling for the improvement of Alexander street, which was referred to the street committee.

A large number of petitions were presented and referred to the proper committees. Among the number were: J. B. Whitley, for a retail beer ficense at 596 Marietta street; the Wilson Whisky Company, at 41 Peachtree street, for a wholesale liquor license; Rose & Bailey, for a wholesale whisky license at 43 Peachtree street; J. D. B. Harbin, retail at 220 Marietta street. All these were referred to the police committee.

Mr. Dimmock had a resolution looking to a better system of laws regulating peddling.

"I have one here," said Mr. Broyles, "which I desire read."

The ordinance recited the devotion of the military to the city of Atlanta and declared that the companies were in need of an armory. It then provided for the expenditure of $20,000 for that purpose, the money to come from the city of Atlanta.

"I want that resolution referred to the finance committee, and I will watch it there," said Mr. Broyles.

The resolution was so referred.

Mr. Reneau presented a resolution looking to the city owning its own plant for electric lights. It was referred to the electric lights committee.

Sewers were given a big swell. Petitions and resolutions were presented looking to an extension of the Loyd street sewer to a sewer from Spencer to Magnolia, at a cost of $5,000; from Ormond to Connolly, at a cost of $25,500; along and within Whitehall from McDaniel to the city limits, at a cost of $25,500; from Third street to the city limits at a cost of $3,200; from Third street to the city limits at a cost of $4,750; from the Orme street sewer to West Peachtree, at a cost of $6,000; from near Lester to West Hunter, at a cost of $1,000; from West Hunter, at a cost of $15,000; from West Hunter to Larkin, at a cost of $10,0250; from Whitehall to Glenn street, at a cost of $4,700.

Mr. Meador presented a resolution authorizing the appointment of a special committee to take in hand the building of a new city hall for the city. The motion prevalled, sind the chairman appointed as that special committee Mr. Meador, Mr. Rice and Mr. Bestie.

An ordinance authorizing the paving of Spring street from North avenue to the city limits was read and went to the street committee. The contemplated cost of the work will be $12,900.

Every member handed in a big batch of petitions and resolut petitions and resolutions for work in the various wards. The work on streets alone will be, if granted, more than the sum of money given to that department will defray. All of these petitions and resolutions were referred to the committee to which they belong, and will be reported upon at the next meeting.

Mr. Reneau presented an ordinance amending the liquor laws of the city of Atlanta. The runchment provides that applications for licenses shall be made for one year, commencing July 1st of each year, and applications made after July 1st shall expire January 30th, thereafter. The ordinance provides that hereafter the advertising notice of intention to apply for license shall apply only to new salcons.

The council had a harmonious session and then adjourned to attend the Reinhardt banquet in a body.

THE LAST MEETING OF THE OLD BODY

For Work Was Held in the Afternoon—What Was Done—Reports of the Officers.

The general council of 1892 convened for its last work yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mr. McWaters, of the third ward, was the only absentee and his absence was due to hete injuries he received a few days ago in Montgomery.

Mayor Pro Tem Reinhardt was in the chair and presided with his usual ease and dignity.

chair and presided with his usual case and dignity.

The annual reports of the standing committees and the city officers were called for and were passed up to the cierk and read. Some of these papers were extremely interesting and all of them will be put in the annual book of reports.

The first paper submitted was the annual report of the finance committee. It read:

the city and should be maintained and kept in tact. Through the comptroller system we find it quite easy to obtain information as to the financial condition of the city's affairs. An account is kept with each officer collecting the city's money, with a perfect system of checking between the different officers. All money collected by each must be placed in the city treasury on the same day it is collected, and the officer must make his daily report to the city comptroller of all the moneys so deposited, with a duplicate recipt from the treasurer attached thereto verifying the same. Therefore every day's collection by each officer or official, collecting money for the city, is checked up and balanced on the same day it was made. The perfect safety under this system is guaranteed, and this comptroller system should be kept intact and never be allowed to be repealed or weakened, but should be strictly allowed to.

Then the other reports were handed and read as they came to the clerk's des Here they are:

The Bridge Committee.

The Bridge Committee.

Mr. Turner, chairman of the committee on bridges, gave a resume of the work in that department for the year. The report showed that $108,500 had been set aside for the bridges of Atlanta for the year and that $43,379.28 of the amount had not been expended. Mr. Turner told of the new Forsyth street bridge and said that it was the first step in the history of Atlanta by which the two sections of the city would be brought closer together. He showed how the delay in completing the bridge came about and regretted that he had not been able to give it to the city for a Christmas present, as he had promised. He convinced all, however, that the delay was no fault of his or his fellow committeemen.

The Cemetery Committee.

Mr. Broyles chairman of the cemetery committee, told of the authority given him by the general council to sell more lots in Oakland, and reviewed his work. He paid a special compliment to Dr. D'Alvigny, the sexton, saying that the cemetery is better kept than any burial ground in the south. Mr. Broyles is satisfied that Oakland is the prettiest place in the south.

Coutested Claims Committee. The Cemetery Committee.

Mr. Meador, chairman of the committee on confested claims, gave up a good history of Atlanta's litigation. It showed that suits which had been pending for $188.415 had been disposed of and that the total cost of the settlement had been $5,867. It said that fifty-nine suits had been brought during the year claiming $195,926. The character of all the suits were fully described. The Electric Lights Committee

The Electric Lights Committee.

Mr. Turner, chairman of the committee on electric lights, handed in a report covering the work in his department for the year. It showed the amount of money that had been expended and how each dollar of it had gone. It disclosed the number of new lights that had been added and wound up by advocating strongly an electric light plant for the city. He declared that the city would save thousands of dollars every year by owning a plant. Mr. Turner told of the improvements that the electric light company, now having the contract with the city, had made during the year. The report was one of the most interesting papers that was handed in and will form a valuable addition to Atlanta's archives. ta's archives.

The Police Committee Mr. Tye, chairman of the police committee, said that his committee had been given $160,803.15 during the year for the police department and that that included $34,250 for the new station house. "We have," said the report, "received from the police court $19,684.12. There are seventy-six retail liquor saloons in the city, thirteen retail beer saloons, nine wholesale liquor houses and two wholesale beer houses."

The Public Buildings and Grounds.

The Public Buildings and Grounds. The Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. Woodward, chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds, told the pleasant story of Atlanta's new station house, which is about completed at the cost of a hundred thousand dolars. It told of the new and magnificent fire department headquarters and of the new school buildings that have gone up during the past year. The report was one which pleased every one and made all happy over the evident prosperity of the city.

The Sanitary Committee.

The Sanitary Committee. Mr. Shropshire, chairman of the sanitary committee, handed in a complete history of the work in the sanitary department for the year, and argued that Atlanta, since the vosi and his force a high compilment. The committees had, when the year began, 9,356 houses in the sanitary limits, but during the year 033 houses were added. Mr. Shropshire said that the department would have 14,814 houses to attend next year and that it would take an appropriation of $112,500 to start the work and carry it through. Each house would cost about $6. The city in return, said Mr. Shropshire, would get about $45,000, because so many horses and mules would have to be bought to start the work it would require that amount of money. The report decrared that one mule and cart could serve 175 housets. The report was an interesting one and will command the attention of the new council. It was supplemented by a report from Chief Inspect? Veal and by a complete history of the sanitary department by Dr. Baird, of the board of health.

The Public Spheols Committee.

The Public Schools Committee.

Mr. Woodward, chairman of the schools committee, sent in a report on the schools. The paper was an interesting one and made reference to the annual report of the superintendent of public schools for figures and details. In Mr. Woodward's report he declared that Atlanta's public schools were the admiration of the whole south and said that they surpassed some of the famed colleges in the country.

The Sewer Committee.

Mr. Stephens, chairman of the sewer committee, was ready with his annual report and it was passed in and made a part of Atlanta's archives. The report gathered its information from the annual report of the city engineer, which was printed in The Constitution Sunday morning.

The Waterworks Committee.

Mr. Boyd, chairman of the waterworks committee, gave a resume of the work in his department for the year. He left the condition of thenew waterworks system to the board of waterworks commissioners. In his report Mr. Boyd said that the city had had, during the year from the old waterworks, used 923,451,700 gallons of water which was an average of 2,530,600 gallons aday. During the year the waterworks consumed 2,753 tons of coal.

The Park Committee.

Mr. Holbrook, chairman of the park committee, said that $7,500 had been given to that department and that the park had brought the city $1,150, making the total cost of the park to the city $6,350. Mr. Holbrook spoke of the great beauties of Grant park and said that no city in the south could show anything to compare with it. He described the park in such a charming manner that Councilman Northen moved that the body adjourn and pay the park a visit right then in a body.

The Committee on Legislation.

Mr. Woodward, chairman of the com-The Park Committee.

Mr. Woodward, chairman of the committee on legislation, reviewed the work in that department during the year. He gave the caption of all bills that had been secured for the city and made reference to the report of the city attorney.

The Claims Committee. The Claims Committee.

Mr. Meador, chairman of the committee on contested claims and litigation, turned over to the clerk a batch of papers, which had been in the hands of the committee for a long time. They were papers on which reports had not been made and if they are thrown into the fire it will be about the best thing that can be done. The report gave the details of each case and suggested how it should be disposed of.

The Board of Firemasters. The Board of Firemasters.

Mr. Stephens, chairman of the board of fire masters, gave a report, but said that the report of the chief of the department would cover everything more fully. The report showed that the department had done most excellent work during the year and complimented not only Chief Joyner, but every member of the fire department in the highest terms.

The Relief Committee.

The Relief Committee. Mr. Murphy, chairman of the relief committee, handed in his report, which showed they that department cost the city during the year $5,018.09 and that 228 people had been buried by the city. The report complimented all of the city physicians in the highest terms.

The Fire Department.

Mr. Colvin, chairman of the fire committee, sent in a report telling of the work in that department during the year. It was full and comprehensive and showed that Chief Joyner and his men had done their work well. The report made reference to the fuller report of the chief for the number of fires during the year and the amount of the damages by each fire and by them all combined.

The City Hall Officers' Reports.

Chief Connolly's report of the work done by the police department during 1892 showed that $123,703.15 was appropriated for its maintainance, of which $9,687.75 was paid out for uniforms and $1,694.34 for the rent of the station house and police stables. Twenty thousand, four hundred and ninety-eight dollars and twelve cents was collected from various sources. The number of men comprising the force is 152, in addition to eleven extra men on the pay roll. The chief asks that sufficient be appropriated by the council to retain the thirty men recently added to the force. His men, he says, have been very successful during the past year.

The Recorder's Report.

In his report Recorder Calhoun shows that he has tried 10,115 during the year 281 less than in 1891.

In these he imposed fines amounting to $49,153.40, of which amount $19,222.55 was collected and $25,500.45 worked out on the streets.

The City Atternsy's Report.

Hon. John B. Goodwin submitted his last report as city attorney. It was a complete resume of the work in the legal department for the year showing the number of suits that had been brought against the city and the number that had been disposed of. It gave the amount of damages asked for and told how much the city had saved by the manner in which the suits has been disposed of. It dealt with the new legislation that has been secured and outlined the bills that had been passed by the legislature for the benefit of the city of Atlanta. The report of the city attorney was supplemented by the report of the committee on legislation and the two papers make a complete history of the law department of the city during the past year.

The City Saxton's Report.

Dr. Charles D'Alvigny, sexton at Oakland, handed in a report showing how many burials had taken place in that cemetery during the year and how many bodies had been moved away. The paper showed the expenses and the receipts for the year, and made reference to the report of the cemetery committee of the general council.

The street Commissioner.

Captain Dave Wyly, street commissioner, gave a complete history of his department for the year, and interesting reading it was. The paper showed that $49,000 had been given to streets ordinary and that $47,332.15 had been expended, leaving $1,667.85 on hand. The report showed where every dollar of the money had been given for sewer repairs and said that the full amount had been disposed of at the same time, showing where the money had gone. The report gave the amount of work done in each ward, and was full and comprehensive. It showed the number of catch basins, street crossings, etc., laid during the year. It gave a full history of the work at the stockade farm and an inventory of the live stock and other property on hand there, together with the fact that the farm had produced enough to be not only self-sustaining but that it had brought a neat profit to the city treasury,

Inspector Veal's Report.

The amount of the pay roll for the past year was $42,014.40.

The total number of lots receiving at present the night soil and garbage services are 10,379, and the total amount of sanitary tax is $30,178. The number of houses built last year is 1,047. The number of loads of garbage removed during the year was $30,030. This number of cases made in the recorder's court was 103 and 69 of these were fined, the amount of fines being $464.65. The total amount collected by the inspector was $262.15.

A large lot of beef, fish, vegetables and dressed fowls have been condemned during the past year as until for food. These and many other smaller items show that the sanitary department has the health of the city at heart, and is spending its pest efforts in the kirection of improvements sanitary.

The eighth annual report of the chief of the fire department show that the number of alarms, 203, exceeded those of last year

The causes of the alarms were in the main from defective flues and sparks from chimneys.

The value of the buildings where fire occurred was $856,675 and the value of the contents was $8.0,222, making the total value of the property at risk $1,735,897. The insurance on the buildings and contents at risk was $1,057,960.

The damage on the buildings was $42,721 and the damage on the contents was $60,721, and the total damage $103,442.

The Technological school, which was practically out of the reach of water, tak-3,100 feet of hose to get a stream on the flames; the loss in this instance was $18,000. The Maddox, Rucker & Co's., manufacturing works, which required 3,300 feet of hose, is included in this report, the loss being estimated at $30,000.

being estimated at $30,000.
Since Chief Joyner has had chrage of the department, seven and one-half years, there have been 1,358 fires and the losses were $548,162, a remarkable and nearly extraordnary record.

The expenses for the year were $73,410-74.

Chief Joyner believes that the department at present is entirely too small to cover the amount of territory now under fire surveillance. He recommends the purchase of a light hook and ladder truck and the addition of three hose companies. A water tower is also cited as an imperative need. The department now owns twenty horses valued at $6,250 and apparatus worth $11,750.

valued at $6,250 and spparatus worth $11,750.

An appropriation of $79,500 is asked for to meet the expenses of the coming year and an extra $42,000 if the council sees fit to act upon the recommendation for the purchase of the new apparatus.

Obstruction of the streets without putting up proper lights was spoken against and a law suggested to put a stop to the blocking of not only the streets but the sidewalks by builders.

Chief Joyner pays a deserved compliment to his brave men and concludes by thanking the mayor and general council for the courtesies shown him.

A feature of the report is the alarm sheet, giving each fire that occurred, the number of the alarm turned in, the time, owner of the building, contents of building, description, value, insurance, loss and cause.

The New Waterworks.

President George Hillyer in his report on the waterworks office, says that "the department has been managed from the standpoint not of grasping and disbursing through its agency, the largest possible but with the object of transacting the but ness and conducting the work of the dispartment successfully, with the least possible outlay. The maxim has been not ospend all that we could, but to save all that we could for the city."

The new waterworks, says the report are nearing completion. Judge Hillyer says he feels a pride in the work, as he began agitating the matter when he was mayor. He adds: "We have here a monument to Mayor Hemphill's administration and those co-operating in the work, of which any man or set of men might well feel proud."

The storage reservoir on Bishop street is completed. It will contain one hundred and ninety-eight million gallons of water when full, and will enable the city to have probably all the time clear water. The pumping capacity at the river is six or seven times greater than the city's daily consumption. All possible seconds. The pumping capacity at the river is six or seven times greater than the city's daily consumption. All possible economy has been observed by the board in the work, but the best material and machinery were bought. The three pumps at the river with a daily capacity of 10,000,000 each are equal to any in the world. And when the works are completed they will be as fine as any city of Atlanta's size has. Today the city could probably sell its waterworks plant for two and one-half to three million dollars and they did not cost one-half of that. By judicious management upon principles of fairness and common sense, the department ought to yield in a few years an annual revenue of $200,000 or more. The present income is $80,000 g year.

At this time only one-fifth of the dwelling houses in the city use water from the city waterworks. Atlanta's water rate is lower than that of any other city of her size in the country, but free water is not advised.

The moter system has proved more and size in the country, but free water is not advised.

The meter system has proved more and more of a success. Before the meters were put in, the city had disastrous fires, such as the old Kimhetl and the Block fires. Then there was a great waste of water daily and the pressure was insufficient. Through the meters, 4,500,000 gallons were saved a day and the pressure in the mains increased so that six or eight streams of water, from the bydrants in the streets, could be thown over the tops of the tallest buildings in the city. We are now pumping less water daily than was wasted prior to the introduction of the meter system.

pumping less water daily than was wasted prior to the introduction of the meter system.

The new waterworks have cost so far $507,153.51 and can be completed within the critical amount appropriated, $750,000. Another storage reservoir is recommended, also a double thirty inch main connecting pumping station No. 2 with the city; also forty miles of new additional six inch mains laid in the streets. To do all this would require $250,000 more. But it would not be an expense—rather an investment. The new six inch mains would finerease the city's revenue from the consumption of water to such an extent as would pay two or three times the interest it would cost the city to carry the bonds necessary to execute the work. Judge Hillyer says that he thinks that it will be best in the very near future to make this additional outlay. He argues that the department should really be given credit for the water which the city uses in all its offices, in the rub'ic schools, for the many fire hydrants and drinking fountains, for flushing sewers, and sprinkling streets. He pays handsome compliments to Superintendent Richarls, Chief Engineer J. B. Travis, Secretary George W. Terry and Chief Engineer K. M. Clayton. Captain Clayton and Mr. Richards through their competency nave saved the city from fifteen to twenty thousand dollars in salaries, which would have been asked by experts had it been necessary to employ them.

A statement is appended showing the yearly revenue of the water department since the first introduction of water in the city in 1876. That year the income amounted to $527: 1887, $10,217; 1880, $23,500; 1883, $31,010; 1885, $39,283; 1886, $32,751; 1888, $38,286; 1889, $56,49; 1890, $63,438; 1891, $74,431; 1892, $79,695.

Three Regross Steal a Bale of Cotton and Bring It to Atlanta

BUY PISTOLS WITH WHICH TO FIGHT

Their Pursuers — Sensational Scene on Mangum Street Yesterday Morning. One of the Negroes Arrested.

At 11 o'clock yesterday morning three negro thieves did about as bold a thing as the worst brigands ever summoned nerve enough to do, out on Mangum street, while people were passing back and forth along

Each with a drawn pistol, they held at bay a Mr. Adam Barge, a Fulton county farmer living near Ben Hill, and a neighbor of his. They forced Mr. Barge and his friend to give up pursuing them, and, with revolvers still drawn, they drove away and escaped.

Mr. Barge and his neighbor were following the three negroes, who had stolen a bale of cotton from the former and brought it to the city and sold it. The negroes refused to be caught, and, with good, cool, hard nerve, they balked their pursuers and escaped, all save one. He was captured a little later by Detectives Bedford and Harris, and is now locked up in the police station.

When Mr. Barge, who lives near Ben Hill, six miles from the city, woke up, he found that a bale of cotton had disappeared from a shelter under his barn. He suspected some negroes who lived near by, and, after making some investigation, he learned that the negroes had come to

He at once came to the city in company He at once came to the city in company with a friend, and found, soon after ar-riving here, that Walliam Drewry, an old negro who lived on Mr. Milton Cul-bert's farm near his own, and his two sons, John and Jim Drewry, had sold abale of cotton. He found the bale of cotton in a warehouse on the corner of Thompson and Mitchell streets, and identified the marks on it as his own.

He followed the negroes, and overtook them on Mangum street. He and the gentleman with him approached the wagon in which the three cotton thieves were in which the three cotton thieves were riding, and called out to them to halt. But the negroes were determined not to give up without a fight, and they drew their pistols on the gentlemen. They swore they would kill Mr. Barge if he moved a step nearer to them. Mr. Barge had no weapon, and, after talking with the negroes for some time without producing any effect, he gave up the pursuit. ducing any effect, he gave up the pursuit, and came back into the city.

He telephoned to police headquarters, and Chief of Detectives Wright sent De-tectives Bedford and Harris out to investigate the matter. After some search, they found the wagon and mule the negroes had had in a wagon yard on Peters street. They afterwards found William Drewry, the oldest of the negroes, in charge of a gentleman who had captured him. He was running when caught. He was brought to the police station and locked up about 11 o'clock, and Detectives Bedford and Harris continued to search for the other two negroes. They were unable to find them, as they had slipped in a hurry after finding that officers were after them.

It developed after William Drewry was arrested that the mule and wagon had been stolen as well as the bale of cotton. The old negro said they belonged to

A Card from Bishop Nelson Savannah, Ga., December 31.—Editor Constitution: I ask your courtesy to enable me to reply to an article which appeared in your paper of the 28th instant, entitled "The Georgia Diocesan Cathedral."

per of the 28th instant, entitled "The Georgia Diocesan Cathedral."

The explanation which I have to make is simple and will be as brief as possible.

It has come to the knowledge of your readers, without any word of mine, that the vestry of St. Philip's church has offered its property to the bishop for cathedral uses, which action was confirmed. I understand, at a congregational meeting duly convened on December 30th.

I need scarcely remark that I regard this action as a token of respect and confidence of which any bishop might be proud, as the property, although somewhat encumbered, is very valuable. What action I shall take, over and above the grateful acknowledgment of the gift, is a matter for grave deliberation, and cannot possibly be determined for some months to come. St. Philip's parish has done its part nobly and well and deserves all praise.

I must be allowed to express my sincere regret at the form of the article of December 28th, referred to, as an attempted decision in advance of what would be to me and many others a very important affair. I can regard it as no less than bold impertinence in the person who undertook to furnish the information which was very wide of the facts and calculated to compromise me in a very unworthy action.

It may not be generally known that I am

3. The readiness of the diocese to approve such action and the willingness of the diocese to convey its interests in the property about St. Philip's church.

All these are yet to be determined and I thank no one for attempting to represent my ideas or purposes without my authorization. So far from having made statements in the direction of the article, I have not come to a conclusion in my own mind, so that the cleverest psychohypnotist, or mind-reader, would be utterly incompetent to give to the public my views upon this subject.

I shall be most happy at the proper time to state the outcome of the present negotiation, and counting upon the cordial relations and helpful co-operation of the press, which I have enjoyed for sixteen years, I remain, with many thanks for your acceptance of these remarks, yours very truly,

That Bequest to the Gammon School. Editor Constitution:—In connection with the anouncement of the gift of $750,000 to the announcement of the gift of should be the dammon School of Theology which appeared in your columns December dist, I desire to submit a few reflections to the people of Georgia—especially to the rich people of not begrudge the good fortune of Dr. I do not begrudge the good fortune of Dr. Thirkield and his colleagues. I do not enry the ctored students who will be blessed by this gift. All good citizens—certainty all Christian people—will rejoice at the anannouncement of this large benevolence. It will do good.

But the fact remains that the richest college in Georgia by several hundred thousands is for negroes. The Gammon School of Theology—which is only one department of Clark university—is alone worth $1,100,000.

The entire plant of Clark university is worth more than Emory, Mercer and the university at Athens combined.

Aside from such bequests at this $75,000 to the Gamman School of Theology, the Freedman's Aid Society of the northern Lethodischurch expended for the support of schools among the negroes in the south during the year ending June od, 1834, $20,783.

Our men of wealth must hear in facts like these a call of patriolism if not of picty to do something worthy of themselves for our deorgia colleges. To hoard money at such a time is a sin; to use it as a toy in fads and vanities is wicked and babyish.

In the history of mashind there was never such giving to colleges as in now going on in the United States; but little of it is to southern colleges for whites and lessed of 1802, the Chicago university received $1,230,000. A few days before Mr. Phil D. Armour quiety put a million dollars in a building for an industrial school in Chicago, and expressed the purpose of giving another million and a quarter to endow it. Between the dates of these two gifts Darin $20,000. And this is the way this marrelous stream of giving goes on north and west all the year. And our southern colleges are further behind at the close of each year than they were at its beginning.

Take the case of Massachusetts and Georgia—states of nearly equal population, though than has Massachusetts.

College endowments in Massachusetts are worth $10,050,000; in Georgia $75,000. (These are the figures at the close of the year 1891. The figures for 1882 are not yet published.) Value of colleges grounds and buildings in Georgia $75,000. These are the figures at the close of the year 1891. The figures for 1882 are not yet published.) Value of colleges rounds and buildings in Georgia $75,000. These are the figures at the close of the year 1891. The figures for 1882 are not yet published.) Value of rederific apparatus in Georgia for several published, and write of those facts we would birther has been been commonly account the published published publishe

I make.

But there are some fair-minded men and women who will not growl because these facts and views are presented. For some cause they have not considered them hitherto. Is it too much to hope that current events will force them to consider of them now and that they will act generously? Let them signalize the beginning of the new year by some notable gifts to higher education as Chicago's rich men glorified the close of the old year.

"ACROSS THE POTOMAC."

A Large Audience Witnessed the Play at DeGive's Last Night.

The title "Across the Potomac," would stamp it a war play or a "great war drama" as each successive dramatic snap shot of the "unpleasantness" is styled. Southern girls and soldiers, yankee girls and soldiers, and the indispensable negro servant, fight the war over, fall in love with each other—all but the servant—the soldiers get abot, are taken prisoners, escape, are recaptured, sentenced to death and saved just in the nick of time by General Lee's surrender.

The action of the plece, which was presented at DeGive's last night, is very stirring. The soldiers on both sides do gallant deeds, express noble sentiments and move awkwardiy over the stage. There is a villian who is a wicked, bad man—so good a villain in fact that the gallery hissed him when he walked across in front of the curtain. But that demonstration was really a compliment, though he did not seem to appreciate it, for he stopped and glared up in the direction whence the noise came as though he had half a mind to remonstrate.

came as though he had half a mind to remonstrate.

If real war is like war plays, they serve the commendable purpose of discouraging a recurrence. There is some picturesque scenery and some fairly good acting in "Across the Potomac," but both armies from the generals down would profit by a few weeks at Camp Northem next summer.

Mr. Boyd Putnam, the principal hero, is an actor of good parts and he is generally meritorious.

"The Planter's Wife."

Next Wednesday and Thursday will be presented at the opera house a grand revival of the celebrated and highly interesting play, "The Planter's Wife," which has been presented in both Engiand and America over a thousand times, and today is more popular than ever. "The Planter's Wife" will introduce to our theatergoers the favorite actor, Mr. Harry Lacy, who has appeared in the past as the hero of the "Still Alarm." "Jack Royal" and other plays of note, and is regarded as one of the leading actors in the romantic school. He will interpret the part of William Graham, a dashing confederate colonel, in a play full of action, with highly interesting situations and startling surprises. It relies on the force of the stars and the supporting company, and while it requires handsome stage settings, it does not depend on them. Miss Emily Rigl, who plays the heroine, is one of the most brilliant emotional actresses now before the public. She is the incarnation of nervous intensity and serpentine grace, every movement being physically expressive and fascinating. The supporting company is of unusual strength. Mr. Lacy has engaged the players with a view to their individual excellence.

"Jane."

A comedy which bubbles over with mirth, which is brightly humorous, full of gay, sparkling wit, without buffoonery, and is received with vehement applause, in fact, with shouts, screams and yells, such in "Jane," Charles Frohman's successful comedy, which comes to the opera house Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee, January 6th and 7th. This mirth-provoking comedy was the talk of London and Paris, and is credited with a brilliant run of over one bundred nights at the Madison Square theater. New York city, where it played to immense business. The story of "Jane," briefly told, is as follows: A young London spendthrift has imposed upon a trusting guardian by leading him to believe that a wife and baby were the causes of his extravagances. When the guardian arrives he introduces his housemaid, Jane, as his wife, and she borrows a child to complete the deception, but the housemaid's husband, who is the spendintit's valet, cannot endure seeing his wife embraced by his master, and also saddled with a baby. "blows the gaff" and brigs the fraud to a climax, which results in the spendintit's marrying the git of his guardian's choice and receiving absolution and a big bank check. "Jane" will be presented by a splendid cast. "Chums." The New York Herald prize comedictia, will precede "Jane" as a curtain raiser.

ting the negroes of the south free, was proclaimed on the 1st of January, 1863—just thirty years ago.

Under the auspices of the Negro Historical Society, of atlants, the celebration yesterday was arranged.

A lengthy procession made up of the colored military and the local negro schools, was organized at the corner of Butler street and Edgewood avenue.

In the basement of the courthouse very interesting exercises occurred.

They were opened with prayer by Rev. M. C. B. Mayson, D.D., and consisted of a charming essay by Miss M. C. Jackson, and the annual oration by Dr. T. H. Slater, which was pronounced a very fine effort.

The proclamation of emancipation was read by Thadeus E. Tate.

Colonel Seals was recognized in the audience and responded to the call in a few eloquent remarks.

The chairman of the Negro Historical Society is R. J. Henly and the secretary, S. W. Easley.

Week of Prayer.

The opening services of the week of prayer were held at the Young Men's Christian Association yesterday afternoon.

They were conducted by Rev. E. H. Barnett, the pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who spoke on the subject of humility and thanksgiving.

Prayer was offered by Dr. J. Whilam Jones and by Rev. Charles Lane.

Dr. Cleveland made a few remarks in regard to closing the world's fair on Smiday. He thought that a recommendation to that effect should be made to the American congress.

Chief Wright Has the City's Stenths as His Gursts at Dinner.

Fifteen city detectives sat down to a royal banquet tendered to them by their popular chief, Wright, at Folsom's cafe last night.

The spread was enjoyed in the rear dining room, and a happier affair has not been enjoyed by theeagle-eyed Vidocqs in many a day. Banquets are quite the thing among the policemen now, and Captain Wright, who is never outdone, invited every man of his force and the newspaper reporters, who do police work, to partake of his hospitality last night.

There were present as Captain Wright's guests Detectives Bedford, Crim, Cason, Looney, McConnell, Etheridge, Green, Sullivan, Walton, Bone, Harris and a number of newspaper men. The table was beautifully decorated and ladened with a most tempting repast, which the detectives enjoyed greatly.

After dinner the jolly sleuths, fired by the sparkling champagne, grew witty and their bright sallies of wit were enjoyed immens by. Captain Wright, who sat at the head of the table, made a talk to the men which was received with hearty cheers. He referred to each of the men by name in a manner complimentary to them. He complimented each upon his special fitness for detective work, and his humorous references were received with much merriment at times. He referred to Bedford as the patient, Crim as the sly old timer, who turned up when least expected, and who was always a trump card, Cason as the successful detective, but who was not as vise as he looked, Looney as the soul of honor and untiring energy; to Etheridge as the unmarried detective, new in the business, who would have to get married to make a successful detective; to McConnell as the poising and scholarly; Harris the faithful; Walton, who was commended above all things for his tender love and care for his venerable parents, and other bright references to the others of the force.

Little impromptu talks were made by those present. Detective Bedford made a neat little talk. Mr. Taylor, in proposing the health of the host, Cantain Wr END COUNCIL.

The Regulators of That Little Village Hold Annual Meeting.

THREE NEW MEMBERS SWORN IN

The Town Is Booming, and Has Electric Lights and Gas-A Survey Has Been Made for Sewerage.

Last sight the West End council held its annual meeting and reorganized.

The three retinals members, whose terms expired on the last day of last year, are Messra. Burgess Smith, W. I. Zachry and C. J. Kicklighter and the newly elected are Messra. T. H. Miller, W. I. Zachry and J. M. Hunnicutt

The reports of the different committees were heard and accepted and showed an admirable state of affairs.

In the past two years, West End has shown a remarkable growth, and every improvement shows that the town's government is in the hands of capable men.

By actual count there have been built just 136 residence houses in the two years gone by, and the population has increased 23 1-3 per cent in that time.

Further than this, there are 5,200 feet of sewers and a survey has been made of the entire town, for sewerage, at a cost of over three hundred dollars. Sixty-five electric and gas lights illuminate the town at night. As to street paving, West End has two and one half miles of street paved in Belgium block, and two electric lines now traverse the main streets. Thirteen and one-quarter miles of streets have been graded and fourteen miles of curbstone laid. West End is also well equipped for walking, as there are now fifteen miles of sidewalk laid.

The West End acadamy, one of the best equipped schools in the state, has a nearly double patronage in the past two years and the school building and the corps of teachers have been energed.

The present council consists of five members and a mayor, who acts city recorder. The city councilment are F. R. Bunker, Albert Howell, W. I. Zachry, T. H. Miller and J. M. Hunnicutt. The mayor is Dr. J. N. Nelms.

The terms of the West End councilmen are arranged so that three councilmen go out one year and two councilmen and the mayor going out the next; the term is two years. The hold overs in this year's council are Councilment F. R. Bunker and Albert Howell, and Mayor Nelms. Councilman W. I. Zachry's term expired last year but

The majority of the present council are willing to become a part of Atlanta on a proper basis and with certain concessions.

Marshal Caldwell's Report.

The police department of West Rad made a good showing with 200 cases with a result of $552.30 collected in fines and 968 days of penal labor performed. The expense was only $1,092.4, which includes cost of feeding prisoners. In his report Marshal Caldwell recommends new uniforms and increased salaries for the patrolmen.

The kellef tommittee's Report-uncilman Bunker, chairman of the re-committee reported an expenditure of 45

The expenditures for the past year on streets and sewers were $6,516.24. On lights the amount expended was $1,359.37; for stone curbing the amount was $7,510.18 and for sidewalk paving $3,322.10. Sanitary expenses, $574.55. The total resources were reported as $31,898.71, and the liabilities $56,300.

The aggregate value of the taxable property in West End is about two million dollars. The bonded debt permitted by constitutional limitations on this amount would be $140,000. "The fact," says the report, that our net indebtedness is only about twenty-five thousand dollars must, therefore, be a matter of congratulation and pride when we consider the extraordinary amount of public improvements already made."

An Unqualified Endorsement

I write this for the benefit of those who may be suffering from kindred affections, that for a long time gave me so much pain. For ten years I was greatly troubled by what good physicians called rheumatism or neu-ralgia of the bladder, and found no cure until I tried (without much faith) STUART'S GIN AND BUCHU. The first bottle gave relief from pain in the bladder, put my kidneys in good, order, relieved me from spinal weakness, and gave general tone to my whole system. After taking several bottles, I found further treatment unnecessary and discontinued its use. This was five years ago. I have had no return of my former troubles.

Stuart's Gin and Buchu Always does the work. If you have any Bladder, Kidney or other Urinary trouble, it will cure you.
